The hogs on sale today were of very inferior quality all through which accounts for the lower prices paid. There was only one load of good hogs sold which brought $5.60. The market was generally quoted about steady on good hogs and 5 cents lower on common stuff. All but about four loads of afternoon arrivals

The coming Grand Army encampmen at Washington in September promises to be the largest ever held, and more old soldiers will be in line than at any time since the close of the war. Particular in-terest is being aroused from the fact that the G. A. R., have never visited Washing-ton since the grand review just before be-ing mustered out to service. To add to the enjoyment of the encampment a series of very cheap excursions have been arranged to Richmond and the historic battlefield of Virginia.

STANDING ARMIES. seldiers Don't Marry in France and Population Is Accordingly Decreasing The people of Europe are being brought face to face with the cost of great standing armies by a startling evelation just made by the collectors of vital statistics. The census shows that in 1890 the deaths in France exannouncement was first made the doctors declared that the phenomenon was seeded the births by 88,446. When the due to the ravages of la grippe. But the San Francisco Examiner says an examination of the table showed that the mortality had not been above the average; it was the decrease in births which had caused the discrepancy. The returns show that there has been a large diminution in the number of marriages and a decrease of 42,000 in the number of births as compared with the old average.

This is the fruit of a large standing army. Soldiers cannot marry. They would not if they could; and if they could no general would be willing to encumber himself with an army corps of women. The marriageable males in France are reduced by just the number of men who are con scripted for military duty, and the birth rate falls off in proportion. What is true of France is probably true of Germany and Italy. In those countries vital statistics are not collected as assiduously as they are in France. If they were they would probably show that the population of Germany is receding even more rapidly than that of its rival, for Germany has to endure a heavy annual loss from emigration, while France loses few of its people from that cause. It thus seems that the financial embarrassment brought upon those two countries by their war policy—which re-veals itself in both by the labor troubles that are constantly breaking out in Paris and Berlin—is only one of the evil consequences of their warlike attitude. They are not only spending the substance of their people and crushing them beneath an intolerable burden of taxation-the one to keep, the other to regain the spoils of war-but they are stopping the fountain which is the source of their strength and greatness and enduring the penalty of war without a chance of winning its rewards.

ANCIENT SUSPENSION BRIDGES. They Were Erected in China Centuries

Before the Christian Era Began. Suspension bridges which were built in the time of the Han dynasty (220 B. C. to 220 A. D.) are still standing, striking examples of early oriental engineering skill. According to historical and geographical writers of China it was Shang Lieng, Kaen Tsu's chief of commands who undertook to construct the first public roads in the flowery empire. At that time it was almost impossible for the province of Shense to communicate with the capital. Lieng took an army of ten thousand workmen and cut great gorges through the mountains, filling up the canyons and valleys with the debris from his excavations. At places where deep gorges were traversed by large and rapid flowing streams he actually carried out his plan of throwing suspension bridges stretching from one slope to the other.

These crossings, appropriately styled "flying bridges" by the Chinese writers, are high and dangerous looking in the extreme. At the present day a bridge may still be seen in Shense which is four hundred feet long and is stretched over a chasm more than a thousand feet deep. How those early engineers erected such a structure with the tools and appliances at their command is a mystery to the Omaha World-Herald. Most ancient Chinese bridges are only wide mounted men, railings on either side serving to insure the traveler's safety. It is thought highly probable that the missionaries who first reported on the early suspension bridges of China and who, of course, gave some idea of their plan of construction, were really the cause of that unique species of bridge building being adopted by western nations. Again we are impressed with the truth of Solomon's famous expression: "There is nothing new under th and the dozing driver allowed the horse to carry the bridal couple into the cemetery. -Prof. Herkomer says that when he sent one of his first pictures to the Dudley Gallery an art critic thus noticed it in the press: "It represents an ugly girl choosing bad cabbages with an impossible background." When he had quenched his thirst he asked her if she was married or single. She replied widow. On which the man said he was a widower in search of a wife. A lady in the adjoining room to Gilmore also owned a piano. He borrowed it thereafter by simply playing. "I'm tired now, and sleepy, too." -According to Rogers, the poet Vernon was the person who invented the story about the lady being pulverized in India by a sunstroke. When he was dining there with a Hindoo, one of his
